Rabbits and Horses,
Dogs and Men — and a New Rabies Serum

The week-end mail brought this newspaper a famous chemical company's announcement of the discovery of the first new agent for preventive treatment of human rabies to be offered the medical profession in the United States in a quarter of a century.

The announcement came from the Lederle Laboratories division of American Cyanamid company.

With slight modification the Pasteur vaccine remains essentially the same as when discovered in 1885 — and it is still the basic treatment despite the Lederle-Cyanamid agent which is reported today. This latter is a serum rather than a vaccine, and the announcement explains:

"The serum, recommended as an adjunct to the standard Pasteur treatment by vaccine injections, offers an extra margin of safety in the treatment of persons who have been exposed to rabies and will be especially welcome in cases of animal bites about the head and neck. Bites in this area are particularly dangerous because of proximity to the brain and the consequent reduction in incubation time for the rabies virus. Administration of Anti-rabies Serum in such cases makes protective antibodies promptly available."

The announcement has a couple of interesting details. It points out that rabies vaccine is prepared from the brain tissue of rabbits, and its injection into humans sometimes produces complications, particularly when a person is undergoing the Pasteur treatment a second time. "Physicians recognizing symptoms of these severe complications now have recourse to 'Anti-rabies Serum,'" says the laboratory statement.

The other item has to do with the serum's discoverer and his procedure. His name is Dr. Hilary Koprowski. He and his associates developed the serum from horses, and began clinical trials on human patients in 1948. Since then more than 200 persons have been treated, and none has died of rabies.

"This is an important and interesting scientific matter, but here the scientific discourse ends and the editorial begins.

By this time, that rabbits have to die to make vaccine, and horses have to die to make serum — all because some human tramps don't take adequate care of their dogs.

This is an important discovery — this new serum — but the greatest prevention of all, against rabies, is an inoculated and well-kept dog.

One human tramp bringing down a "mad dog" scare on a community not only costs the lives of perfectly healthy dogs but also chalks up another toll for rabbits and horses so persons actually bitten may be guarded against death.

On the other hand, it is true that rabies exists in wildlife — notably among foxes; and you can't very well blame foxes on people. But even so, an inoculated dog stands a pretty good chance of resisting disease from a fox — and the threat to people comes from dogs, not foxes.

Let this new scientific discovery, with its background of rabbits and horses, make more thoughtful dog-lovers out of all of you.

DOROTHY DIX

Travel Broadens Mind

Dear Miss Dix: I am engaged to a soldier who will be out of the Army in December, when we plan to be married. At present he is in Germany, and has seen quite a bit of the world while he's been in service. I, on the other hand, have traveled very little and have an urgent desire to take a trip before I marry.

My sister, in Texas, has invited me to visit her this summer, and I'd love to go, but am afraid it will be an extravagance. You see, Harry has been saving for our home and perhaps he won't approve of the trip. I have been saving, too, and have bought quite a few things for our home; the money I have in the bank now, plus my vacation money, will just about cover the trip. I don't want to appear selfish.

What do you suggest?
Answer: Take the trip! The comparatively small amount of money you'll spend would soon be swallowed up in household expenses, yet won't be missed if it isn't there. The vacation, on the other hand, will give you a feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment that money couldn't buy.

Her Reward

It will also give you a host of pleasant memories to enjoy in the years ahead, with hours given daily to dishwashing, cooking etc., jobs that you'll love doing, but that will get a bit monotonous, nevertheless. Your little jaunt also will give you something to talk about to Harry. Nothing can stimulate conversation like travel experiences.

I'm sure your fiancé has sufficient understanding to see your viewpoint. He has seen so much of the world that he won't want to leave home for a long long time, so that even if homemaking didn't occupy all your time, there'd be small likelihood of a journey in the immediate future.

So you see there are any number of arguments in favor of your trip, and practically nothing against it. When one is touched with wanderlust, it's a good idea to give way to the temptation if it's at all feasible. And, as a final point in favor of your project, it will be very nice for you to see your sister again and I know she'll enjoy having a visit from someone at home. Have fun.

Letters to the Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Letters criticizing the editorial policy or commenting upon facts in the news columns, are equally welcome. Every writer must sign his name and address but publication of name may be withheld if requested.

To the Hope Star

Each time that I write my final account of the annual X-ray clinic I mention the fact that excellent publicity was given by the Hope Star. And each time that section of my write-up is deleted. Which will be true this time, I'm sure. So I'm writing this little note, attaching it to my copy, and hoping to express my thanks to you for front-page coverage of the clinic. I shuddered to think what a poor showing we would make without this "beautiful" cooperation. So Thanks.

Sincerely,
Sue Perkins.
P. S. But I wish all of you had come for your X-rays!

McClellan Names Campaign Manager

112 MCCLELLAN NAMES
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The mayor of England, Ark., and an executive will head Sen. John McClellan's campaign for a third term nomination.

McClellan said Saturday a temporary campaign office would open today at the New Capital Hotel here. Regular campaign headquarters will open later.

McClellan named Mayor Pat Henderson to be chairman of the McClellan Campaign Committee. The 46-year-old Henderson is serving his third term as mayor of England and represented Lonoke County in the Arkansas House in 1945. He is a cotton and rice farmer.

J. Gordon Wilson, president of the Little Rock Road Machinery Co., was named campaign treasurer. He has been connected with the company 17 years.

Three opponents are seeking McClellan to come again.

Dear Miss Dix: Although we've been married for two years, Ben has done nothing about putting any of his property in my name, making a will, for having me named as beneficiary of his insurance. He has grown children by a previous marriage. We are very happy except for this problem.

Answer: These matters certainly should be attended to, and if Ben resents your bringing them to his attention, perhaps some influential friend—a lawyer, banker or businessman—can induce him to make the necessary changes. Some men have almost a superstition about taking definite steps on matters relative to death, and though the task may be unpleasant, it must be done. One often hears of a very prominent man of affairs dying without a will. The best time to take care of these things is when one is in the very pink of health.

Comedy Team Really Tough on Themselves

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Attendants stand by with bandages when Abbott and Costello come off-stage after a show such as their TV Comedy Hour performance.

"They gotta be ready," says Lou Costello. "There's no telling how injured we're going to be."

He isn't kidding. Although Lou is under doctors' orders to lay off the rougher routines, his violent kind of comedy puts him in jeopardy. Abbott, too. He's the straight man, but he has had his share of knocks.

The boys were telling me about their mishaps. I concluded they should have a charge account at some nearby hospital.

"Whenever I finish the TV show, I'm bloody and bruised," Lou said. "After they touch me up with plaster and bandages, the first thing I have to do is call my mother. She's a very nervous type and I have to assure her I'm not badly hurt."

"Once I did a routine with a steel helmet that slipped and cut up my face. When I walked out of the theater that night, a man said to me, 'I just saw Art Aragon get whipped in the ring by Jimmy Carter, and he looked better than you do!'"

On one show, the punch line in a sketch was to have Lou get hit over the head with a vase. But the vase broke early in the act, and Bud had to scurry around backstage to find another one. It turned out to be a real vase, not a breakaway. A girl clouted him with it and nearly knocked him out.

"I got mine during a show we did in New York," said Bud. "We had a sketch where a lady took Lou to court for breaking her umbrella. It was supposed to break when she hit him over the head with it. But the prop man had switched in a real umbrella. "It had to be bent, because that was the payoff for the next scene. When the gal hit Lou and nothing happened, I took it and bent it over my knee. One of the ribs had broken, and it stuck into my leg four inches. I was bleeding like a stuck pig. Lou saw what was happening and ordered me off-stage so I could get bandaged up."

Two Jailed for Postoffice Burglary

PINE BLUFF (AP) — Walter McCray, 21, and James Carter, 23, Negro farm workers, have been arrested in connection with the May 10 burglary of the Altheimer Post Office.

Deputy Sheriff Pink Boom said McCray admitted breaking into the Post Office and that Carter had admitted helping to dispose of the contents of two mail bags taken from the building.

However, he said Carter denied taking part in the robbery.

Boomer said the two are being held in Altheimer jail pending action by postal authorities.

Trays Use Homers to Beat Barons

By The Associated Press
The Atlanta Crackers, bouncing along on a nine-game victory string, today are threatening to move back into the Southern Association lead, which they lost nearly a month ago.

Aided by Little Rock's 5-2 victory Sunday over the league-leading Birmingham Barons, the Crackers moved to within one and a half games of first with a 5-1 defeat of Memphis.

Atlanta's Bob Giggie kept the Chicks under control with a six-hitter marked only by Ed White's ninth-inning homer. The blow cut off Giggie's skein of scoreless innings at 21. The victory was Bob's fifth against six losses.

Chuck Tanner, Cracker outfielder, kept Atlanta's home run chain unbroken with a tremendous wallop in the first game. It was the Crackers' 17th consecutive game with at least one homer.

Home runs also proved the undoing of Birmingham as Adolph Regelski and Ralph Atkins powered them for the Travs. It was rookie Regelski's eighth of the season.

Second Baseman R. C. Otis stopped the Barons most serious rally in the seventh when, with the bases loaded, he speared what appeared to be a sure hit by Jerry Kujaleski and turned it into a double play.

Elroy Face hurled four-hit ball to give New Orleans a 10-9 victory over Nashville. Mobile edged Chattanooga, 10-4, despite three-hit pitching on the part of Dick Hyde and Gonzalo Naranjo.

George Kell Swapped to Chicago Cubs
By ED SAINSBUR
CHICAGO (UPI)—The White Sox dramatic acquisition of former batting champions George Kell and Phil Cavarretta, regarded as their all-out bid for this year's pennant, was hailed today by Manager Paul Richards as "a big boost."

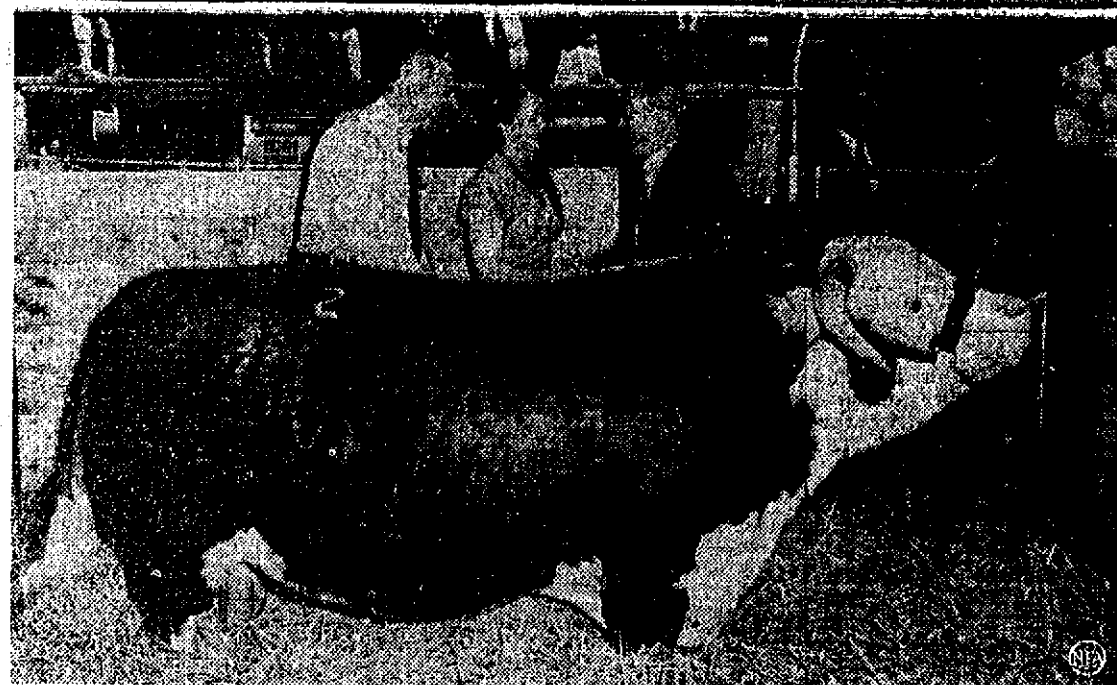

Richards said that Kell, the 1949 American League bat king, will take over at third base in the starting lineup while Cavarretta, the 1945 National League champ, will be used as a pinch-hitter.

Kell 31 was the prize in yesterday's big swap that stunned baseball circles—the Boston Red Sox giving up the veteran third baseman in exchange for Third Baseman Grady Hatton and a huge bundle of cash believed to be about $100,000.

Cavarretta, 33-year-old former manager of the Chicago Cubs, hasn't actually signed his contract, according to White Sox General Manager Frank Lane. But that appeared to be a mere formality, since Cavarretta, a free agent, announced that he and Lane have "agreed on terms." The two were scheduled to confer here today.

Richards indicated that the two player moves, which were designed to add batting punch for the pennant drive, may result in a big re-juggling of the Sox' starting lineup.

The United States has 45 million passenger cars and 9,147,000 trucks in use today compared to 15 1/2 million and 2,120,000 respectively in 1945.

ONE FOR THE MONEY—A record auction price of $100,000 was paid for this bull, Hillcrest Larry 25th, one of the youngest sires ever to get the Register-of-Merit designation. It was bought by Ralph Fair, of Boone, Tex. The three-day auction dispersed the famous 650-head herd of Hillcrest Farms, Chester, W. Va., to settle the estate of the late C. A. Smith, the owner. Fair and Mrs. Fair are shown being congratulated by C. A. Smith, Jr.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) Sam Snead will observe his 40th birthday Thursday, and so there comes the realization that time is beginning to run out on the wealthy ex-hillbilly. I f he is ever to collar the will of the isp he has been chasing all these years, the National Open golf championship, it had better be soon.

Soon after 40, as any of the stars of other days will tell you, the legs begin gradually to go and those 36 holes on the final day of the Open become a terrible grind.

The sing might be as good as over, but when legs become tired it is difficult to maintain the degree of fierce concentration required to win championships.

Because of this, because of the spectacular golf he has been shooting lately, it will not be surprising if Snead draws greater individual galleries: even than Ben Hogan, the defending champion, in the Open beginning at Baltusrol June 17. Hogan, by the way, will be pushing 42 this time, but the Bantam already has won his four Opens and has proved long since that he comes under none of the recognized rules governing age and physical fitness.

Snead's army of admirers, who long have regarded his swing as the greatest in the world, will be pulling for him to crash through before it is too late. They will regard it as almost a personal tragedy if, once again, the balding West Virginian fails to win the biggest prize of them all.

The suggestion has been made, incidentally, that Snead and Hogan be placed in the same threesome for at least the first two rounds so that the crowd may see the two titans in hand-to-hand combat, but it's doubtful that tournament officials will go for the idea. One of them tells us that, while it would be great fun, the resultant gallery would be certain to foul up the course for all the other players.

Ironically enough, during the years that he has been building up his unique record of failure in the Open, Snead has seen it won by five or six players who do not begin to match his over-all list of successes and are, to put it bluntly, less talented. The fact remains, though, that on a certain day when all the chips were on the table, each of them rose to the occasion and wrote his name in the big book.

Hasty Road Is Preakness Winner
BALTIMORE (AP) — Regardless of what he does in the Belmont stakes three weeks hence, Hasty Road will go down in turf history as the horse of thrilling finishes.

When Allie Reuben's blazed-faced 3-year-old son of Roman won the richest of all Preakness stakes last Saturday, it marked the sixth time this year in which he left spectators limp at the finish.

Two of the thrill-packed races, the Kentucky Derby trial and the Preakness, he won. In the other four, including the Derby itself and the Preakness prep, he was second by margins often so slim a photograph was needed to separate him from the winner.

Toski Most Likely to Succeed Hogan
By LOU PANOS
BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Toski headed for his next golf tournament today as the sport's leading money winner and a confident candidate to succeed Ben Hogan as the little giant of the fairways.

The 127-pound belter from Livingston, N. J., shot to the top of the heap yesterday with a smashing seven-stroke victory over the rest of the field in the $20,000 Eastern Open.

Besides pocketing the $4,000 first-place check, which raised his earnings this year to $10,988.74, Toski also became the first campaigner of the tournament trail to rack up his third major triumph of 1954.

All three—he had won the Baton Rouge and Azalea opens earlier—came within nine weeks, recalling the days when Hogan was a regular on the circuit and top paydays were few and far between for fellow members of the fairway.

Senators Not Eager to Use Tough Policies

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) I Sen. McCarthy should change his mind and walk out, the senators investigating his fight with Army officials would have the choice of trying to make him testify or of doing nothing about it.

The Wisconsin senator says he will be available for testimony unless something unforeseen turns up.

Because the Constitution says a member of Congress can't be arrested during a session of Congress except for treason, a felony or breach of the peace, the senators might feel they could not legally subpoena him if he refused to testify.

Because he's a senator, they might be reluctant to do anything anyway, although a plain citizen who refused to answer their questions would be nailed with a contempt of Congress charge in a hurry.

Senator have never been eager to use extreme measures on one another, but it's a rare day when a senator is expelled or even rebuked.

This kind of consideration for one another is probably a form of self-preservation. Whatever they do to any one of their number today might be done to any one of them tomorrow.

This kind of regard which senators have for senators is more a matter of you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours than it is of senatorial courtesy, a phrase which gets thrown around a little carelessly. Among political scientists, "senatorial courtesy" has a very special meaning limited to a case like this:

The President nominates a Californian for a government job but fails to consult one of the California senators beforehand. The nominee cannot have the job unless the Senate approves. But one of the senators from California objects, and the Senate does not approve.

Senators, being politicians with a normal appreciation for the value of patronage like to have a hand in naming a home-state man to a government position. For that reason, they like to be consulted, at least, when the President does the picking.

The objecting senator can let his feelings be known without using the traditional phrase of objection: "This nominee is personally obnoxious to me." Sometimes the other senators go along with him and withhold their approval, sometimes they approve over his objections. Senatorial courtesy is not an ironclad rule.

Senatorial courtesy started in the first session of Congress. George Washington named Benjamin Fishbourne to be naval officer at the port of Savannah, Ga. But the two Georgia senators had a candidate of their own in mind and objected. The Senate did not let Fishbourne have the job, although Washington protested.

It may seem like a lack of senatorial courtesy when, during the McCarthy-Army hearings, McCarthy says two of the investigating senators are trying to block his hunt for Communists and one of them snaps back that in effect a crack like that is just about what he'd expect from McCarthy.

That may be discourteous, but has nothing to do with senate courtesy in the technical sense. The Senate, which has no rule on courtesy, has rules on decorum. For example, a senator is not supposed to speak in a derogatory way about another senator or even about his state. But the worst punishment he can suffer is being made to sit down and stay quiet a while, if the other senators vote for that. They don't always do it.

Still, that rule applies only on the Senate floor. It does not apply to senators in committees. Some committee rules of decorum are pretty loose.

Braves Jump From 7th to Tie for First

By CARL LUNDQUIST

United Press Sports Writer
Almost while nobody was looking, the Milwaukee Braves put on their seven-league boots and jumped from seventh to a tie for first with a seven-game winning streak in the crazy mixed-up National League flag race.

It was "streak week" for the Braves, Dodgers, and Indians. Milwaukee, which was in seventh place two weeks ago and in sixth last Monday, moved into a tie for the top hot spot with Brooklyn by sweeping a doubleheader over the Cubs, 4-2 in 10 innings, and 8-3.

The Dodgers, with a modest four-game streak, their longest of the year, moved up with Milwaukee to the top by beating the Pirates, 5-4 and 8-2. Some of the lustre of their streak was taken off because all of the victories have been over the Pirates.

But the Indians, who threaten to keep on winning until Labor Day, made it 11 straight with 14-3 and 2-1 victories over Baltimore, the second in 12 innings off hard luck Bob Turley. That put Cleveland 2 1/2 games ahead of second place Chicago which edged Detroit 4-3.

Boston made it two out of three over the Yankees with a 10-9 win. Washington defeated the Athletics 10-4.

Cincinnati pushed across five tallies in the ninth for 13-6 victory over St. Louis. The Giants edged the Phils, 6-4.

Coach Bucky Walters of the Braves, who used to be a great pitcher himself, never stops talking about young prospect Ray Crone. After a pile-up of doubleheaders, Crone got a chance to prove it when he beat the Cubs with a five-hitter, striking out seven in his first big league start.

Doubles by Andy Pafko and Danny O'Connell and a pair of Chicago errors brought home the two marginal runs in the 10th after Ernie Banks had hit a two-run homer to tie the ninth for Chicago to tie the score. Pafko went on to drive in five runs in the second game with two homers, and a triple to give young Chief Nichols his fourth straight triumph after three straight losses.

Brooklyn won its opener behind the steady pitching of Preacher (Sluggo) Roe, who smashed a single and double while Gil Hodges hit a two-run homer. Duke Snider hit a pair of homers in the second game while Sid Gordon got one in each game for Pittsburgh.

Wally Post drove in five runs with a double and two run homers in Cincinnati's 12th triumph that knocked the Cardinals out of the lead. The Reds scored five times in the ninth. Ray Jablonski drove in five St. Louis runs, blasting a two-run homer, a double, and a single.

The Giants took a 4-0 toe-hold on lefty Curt Simmons in the first three innings then squeezed to victory although the Phils threatened often, Willie Mays drove in three runs with a triple and single.

Man Found In Trunk of Own Car
MIDDLETOWN, N. Y. (AP)—Fred Mueller, a "missing person" since Tuesday, was rescued yesterday from the locked trunk of his automobile.

Mueller 55 said he became ill Tuesday afternoon while operating his car. He said he decided to rest in the trunk, and the lid snapped shut.

Police had a missing person alarm out for him. A motorist slowed by traffic on a road near New Paltz, N. Y., heard Mueller pounding on the trunk lid and got him out.

Sees Deadlock Over Farm Legislation
By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said today there is a "possibility" that Congress will deadlock over farm legislation and thus let flexible price supports go into effect under existing law.

Knowland, the Senate's Republican leader, said in an interview he doesn't know what is going to happen in the controversy which has found many Democrats and some Republicans lined up behind proposals to continue price supports on major field crops at 90 percent of parity.

But he said "It certainly is a possibility" that the two houses of Congress will fail to agree on a farm bill.

President Eisenhower has urged abandonment of the present system of mandatory price supports on basic field crops at 80 percent of parity and its replacement by a system of flexible price supports ranging from 75 to 90 percent of parity. Parity is a standard of measure giving farmers a fair return in relation to prices they pay for things they buy.</

West Point Closes to Short

By C. FAY

When this year's graduates, West Point, have the best of the year in the 102-year-old U. S. Military Academy.

The Army school for officers, which has a maximum capacity of 1,200, has an estimated 1,000 students after graduation. The school seems neither won nor surprised.

Officials questioned today do not believe the current year's smaller, regular reaction to congressional investigations of the Army is possible.

At the same time, the Army's vacancy list shows a shortage of officers from several branches.

Enrollment at West Point for a time after the graduation of the class because of a lull in interest in military matters. The slump seems to be a little larger.

They in nominations to the school by senators and congressmen. This too, may be a normal pattern. In congressional election years, the school has found that Congress often holds off on nominating officers until after elections. The appointments to the school are filled on a regular basis.

Sheridan Merge Schools

By DAN A. Sheridan School board members have reversed their decision to merge the school with the city school system. The board voted Friday to keep the school separate. The board had previously voted to merge the school with the city school system. The board had previously voted to merge the school with the city school system.

Now it costs less to talk it over by long distance

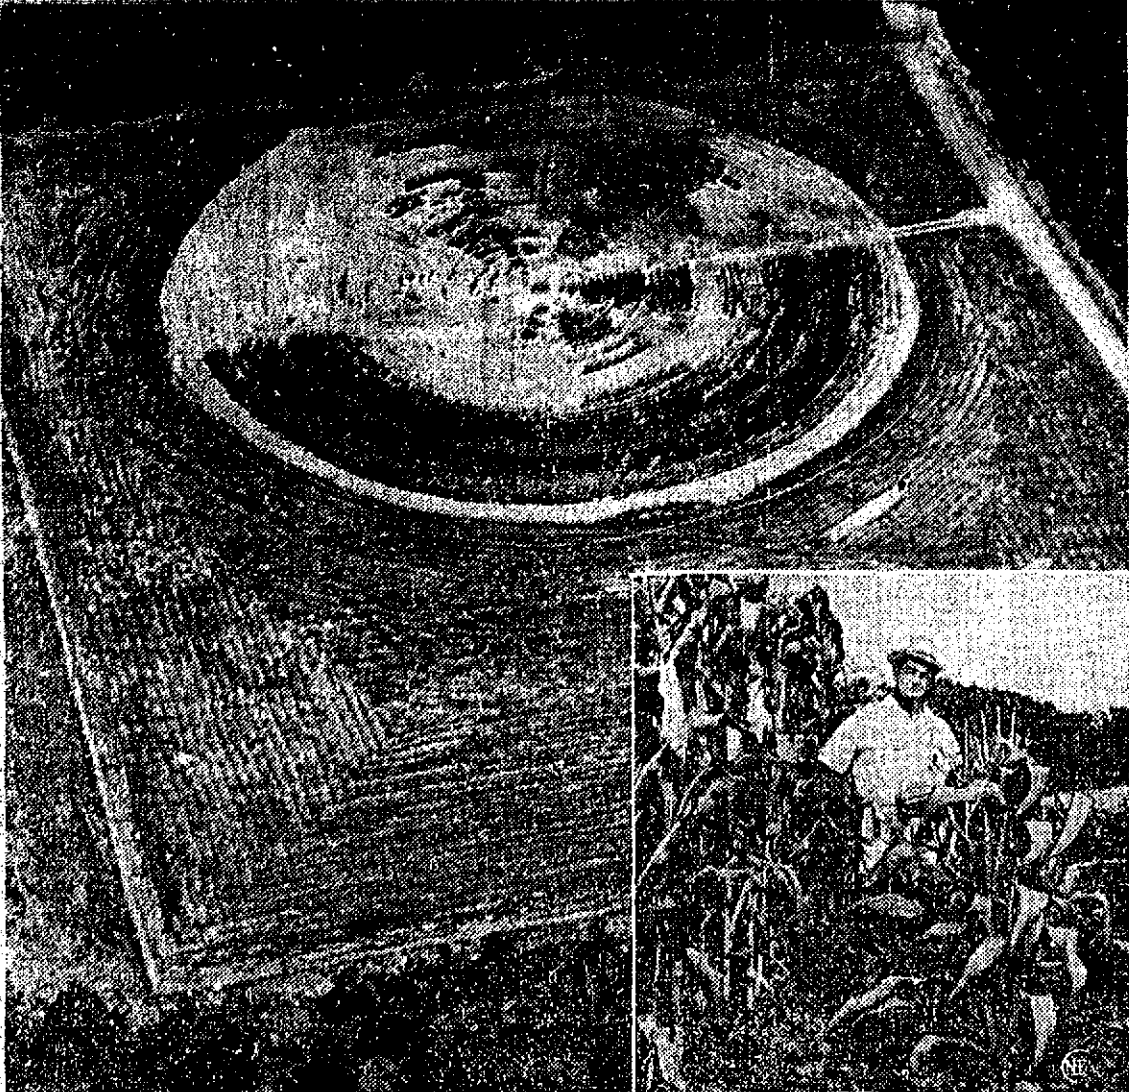

Long distance telephone calls have always been a bargain. Now that Congress has reduced the excise tax on long distance calls, it costs even less to talk it over by long distance.

Part of the tax reduction goes to the telephone company. You get the full benefit of the most long distance calls now cost you less than they did.

Why wonder any more? Talk it over by long distance and be sure.

NOW... AN EVEN BIGGER BARGAIN

Service also costs less. That's why you can save up to 5%.

RADIOACTIVE CORN-GROWING—Circular patch in the air view above is a radioactive cornfield. It's an experimental plot at the Atomic Energy Commission's Brookhaven National Laboratory at Upton, N. Y. Purpose of the experiment is to determine the effect atomic energy can have on various types of vegetation. In center of the circular field is a pipe, containing a bar of radioactive cobalt 60, which sprays out gamma rays. The pipe can be raised or lowered to spray more or less area as desired. Thus effect of the radioactive spray at close quarters and from a distance can be accurately gauged. It is controlled from a station in one corner of the large, rectangular field. The plants are grown in circular rows so that there will be even distribution of measurement. It was found that radiation produced shorter plants (inset contrasts these with normal taller-than-man corn) but possibly of a higher yield because of greater grain ratio.

STREET ROD

By HENRY GREGOR FELSEN

The Story: Ricky Madison's car, a 1933 Ford, is a source of worry to his parents. Not only do they fear an accident, since they know that Ricky's friends are inclined to be reckless in their own cars, but Ricky is under the influence of Merle Connor, a lazy, disreputable mechanic who is helping Ricky build his "hot rod."

X

To Merle's surprise he found himself drawn into Ricky's project with almost as much enthusiasm as Ricky himself had. He didn't try to explain it to himself. All he knew was that he stopped being bored when it was time to work on the old coupe. Stopped sitting around wondering what to do after he lost his garage. He was beginning to feel some pride in his place. Once Ricky had cleaned it up and made a place for the tools it looked pretty good.

The way Ricky jabbered about doing custom work. The kid hardly knew the wheels from the brake drums. But the idea, fired Merle. Without the spirit to plan for himself, he easily hooked onto the plans Ricky made. Under Ricky's questioning, things came back to Merle that he thought he had forgotten years before. Items of knowledge about cars and motors. Tricks for improving performance, old formulas for power that he had learned drifting from shop to shop and then forgotten. To his own astonishment he began to read again. First one magazine on cars that Ricky had been carrying. Then he'd ask to read Ricky's entire collection.

Ricky drove his coupe into the garage and got out. "She runs like a top," he called to Merle. Merle walked over slowly, a cigarette dangling from his lips. "You been able to take Link Allen yet?"

Ricky scowled. "No. But I will. You wait and see."

"I'm waiting," Merle said.

"The next money I get ahead," Ricky said, "what should I put on the coupe?"

"Don't be all in a rush all the time," Merle said. As he spoke a certain dreamy quality came into his voice. "The way you get money in little dabs. I'll tell you what I think you ought to do. Get a race-type air cleaner for the carb."

"Stack's better."

"It's dusty country, son."

"Oh, yeah, what next, Merle?"

"Then you ought to save for dual headers and pipes. You'll pick up some horsepower and performance there."

"And they got that mellow tone," Ricky sighed.

Merle snorted, but he also was thinking of the sweet deep sound they'd make. "After that we'll beef up the ignition, and then see if we can't put another carb on. Two carbs will carry you fine for street use. Then we'll put on a three-quarter grind cam. That might not be according to the book, but since we've got to put on a piece at a time, that's as good a way to add on as any."

"How about stroking and boring?" Ricky asked. "And a high-speed rear end? Once we start, we might as well go all the way."

"We will, we will," Merle said. "But I don't have everything we need to work with."

"Well, the power rods will be in the department anyway. I'll take care of that. I'll be right back with the power rods."

mind that are out of this world."

"And need a Detroit setup to build I bet," Merle scoffed.

"Maybe not," Ricky said. "We don't have to use steel. Maybe we can come up with something in plastic."

"We might at that," Merle said, grinning. "You just take that broom and think about it."

Ricky returned to his sweeping. He could see them now in a modernistic office, with fancy furniture and lights. Sitting at a huge desk, looking at plans while the newspapermen took their picture. "Top Auto Designers at Work, Nation's Leading Design Team Wins International Competition for Best Car in the World." Sharon would be in the picture, too, of course. She was his secretary.

Suddenly Ricky laughed. "What's funny?" Merle asked. Ricky looked at Merle sitting in his dirty, baggy overalls, his face dirty and stark under the harsh lights. "I was just thinking how you'd look shaved wearing a white shirt and tie, getting your picture taken. I don't see it."

"Neither do I," Merle said. "Because when we make our pile, I won't have any white shirts. Just a closet full of western sports shirts, with lots of stripes and pearl buttons. I mean to look dressed up!"

Ricky leaned on the broom, still dreaming of the future, and the picture for the paper. "That will be a day," he sighed.

"That will be THE day," Merle said, really believing it. "Connor-Madison... that name was made for a custom car."

Ricky twined one leg around the broom. "You're sure I don't need college?"

"I told you, didn't I?"

"You'd tell me to go if you thought I needed it, wouldn't you?"

"Sure I would, but I don't think I want a dumb partner, do you?"

"Connor-Madison Motors," Ricky said. "I like the way that sounds. You know, I've been thinking of a sports-car design we might try on my coupe. Suppose we do a real radical. Take her right down to the frame and build something that's got the look of life about it. There has to be sweeping feeling. Something racy, and classy, and alert. Like a good horse with his head up, sniffing the wind, and ready to run."

Merle Connor yawned.

XI

Two weeks later Ricky drove down to Merle's after supper as usual. The big door to the garage was closed. Ricky blew his horn, but Merle didn't open up. Frowning, Ricky got out of the coupe and walked around to open the door himself. That's when he saw the FOR RENT sign propped in the window.

Ricky looked around helplessly, but there was no one to explain. Slowly Ricky got back in his car and drove to Merle's house. The old truck was in the yard, and several ragged little children were playing on it. Ricky climbed sagging steps, and knocked on the front door.

The door was opened by Merle's wife. She was a tired-looking woman with straw-colored hair and a nasty complexion. She was in her bare feet, and wearing a shapeless old print dress with a tear in the side. When she opened a heavy door, she looked at Ricky with a small, cold, and hostile expression.

Connor's wife looked at him for a moment. "He's inside."

Ricky followed her, wrinkling his nose against the smell. There were dirty clothes thrown all over the place. The broken couch in the living room was covered by an old sheet, and there was a baby lying on it, fighting with a swarm of flies for possession of its bottle.

"Merle's in there," Connor's wife nodded toward the back room from which guitar and singing sounds came.

"Thanks."

Ricky went to the doorway and looked in. Merle was sitting on a chair with his feet stretched out to rest on the bed. He was dressed in baggy overalls, and the greasy, red leather cap was on his head. He sang with a cigaret in his mouth.

Ricky waited until Merle had finished his song "Hi, Merle I stopped by the garage."

Merle turned his head. He stared at Ricky with bloodshot eyes that were angry and mean.

Merle's head sagged, and he mumbled to himself. Suddenly he looked up again, his face a dark red. "You ever hear of the Connor-Madison?" he asked, squinting at Ricky.

Ricky laughed hesitantly. "Good old Connor-Madison," he said. "Boy that's a car that will be a car. It'll be the talk of the state when we get through with it."

Merle picked at his guitar, listening. Then he looked at Ricky as though he hadn't seen him before. "Sprout," he said thickly, "you better get out of here. Because if you don't I'm gonna mash your face in."

"But Merle..."

"Git out! Merle slammed his hand against the guitar. "Git out or I'll kill you!"

Ricky backed up hastily. Merle roared and bawled, hitting his guitar. Mrs. Connor padded to the front door and opened it. "I don't know what you done to Merle," she said. "But he sure has it in for you!"

Ricky went out and got in his car. Just before he started the motor, he heard Merle start to sing again. Another mournful, hillbilly tune. There were real tears in it.

A small dirty face tried to peek in Ricky's window. One of Merle's kids.

"This your car?" a shrill voice piped.

"Is it a hot rod?"

Ricky looked at the smudged, wondering face and nodded. "Yeah, A Connor-Madison."

"Connor?" the child shrieked, unbelieving. "It's a Ford! Connors my name!"

Ricky drove away with two sounds in his ears. The shrill child-like voice screaming, "It's a Ford!" and the tearful chant of Merle Connor singing a song about death in the hills.

Merle was out of business again. There would be no more chores around the garage, no more work on the coupe, no more plans about the Connor-Madison. Another reason for his parents to say, "I told you so." Something else for his friends to kid him about.

Habit directed him to the town square, and the Delville Drug. They'd know about Merle's failure. They'd be waiting to rib him about it.

Ricky's mouth tightened. Why run away? He didn't have anything to be ashamed of. It wasn't his fault Merle had failed. And they had done a lot to the coupe. Already on the defensive, prepared for an attack, feeling betrayed and belligerent, Ricky parked in front of the drugstore. He raced his motor before turning the key. Let them know he was there and not ashamed of anything.

Dealer Must Collect Sales Tax

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court ruled today that a Memphis merchant who sends salesmen into Arkansas must collect and remit this state's two per cent use tax on sales to Arkansas residents.

But the court re-affirmed previous holdings that a Memphis vendor need not collect the two per cent Arkansas sales tax if he does not employ sales representatives in Arkansas.

Sales tax and use tax are identical in purpose. The use tax is levied on "use of articles" purchased by Arkansians from outside the state. It's designed to collect revenue on sales which otherwise would be untaxed.

The Supreme Court delivered today's ruling in five related cases involving Memphis business and Arkansas Revenue Commissioner Vance Scurlock.

Three suits centered on whether a Memphis vendor who employs salesmen in Arkansas could be required to collect and remit the use tax.

The Supreme Court said he could be.

The remaining two suits hinged on whether a Memphis vendor who does not employ salesmen in Arkansas, but whose trucks deliver in East Arkansas could be required to collect the sales tax from Arkansas residents who make purchases in person, by telephone, or by mail.

The Supreme Court said the vendor in these cases could not be.

forced to collect the tax.

Pulaski Chancery Court had held that the Memphis merchants were not liable either for use or sales taxes. The Merchants filed suit against former Revenue Commissioner Horace E. Thompson, since succeeded by Scurlock, to prevent him from holding them responsible for the taxes.

Bryan & Peterson, Inc., Fred J. Vandemark Co., and P. H. Williams, a dealer in explosives, are the Memphis sellers which must collect the use tax.

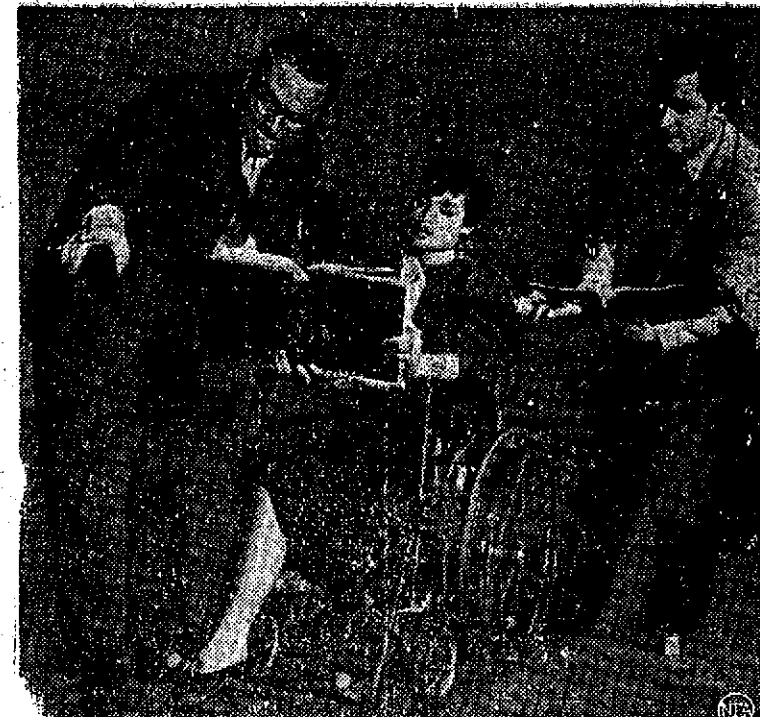

Rhodes-Jennings Furniture Co., and Lee Kahn Furniture Co., need not collect the sales tax, the court held.

The Arkansas Supreme Court said it was basing the use tax decision on a recent ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court in a case on whether a Wilmington (Del.) firm could be forced to collect the Maryland use tax on purchases by Maryland residents.

The U. S. Supreme Court held that the collection could not be enforced, but the Arkansas court said the opinion clearly indicated the ruling would have been otherwise if the Wilmington firm employed salesmen in Maryland.

The Arkansas court's opinion was written by Associate Justice Ed McFaddin. Chief Justice Griffin Smith did not participate, but otherwise the ruling was unanimous.

Hearings Go Back on TV Today

By The Associated Press

This is the day that Americans once again cluster around TV screens to watch the Army-McCarthy hearings.

The most dramatic thing ever "densed," said one fan in a letter to the ABC network.

One thing seems certain: the hearings have stirred up a tremendous reaction among newspaper readers, TV viewers and radio listeners.

As many as 4,000 protests have descended on a TV station that dropped live telecasts.

Thousands of letters have piled into newspaper offices to commend or condemn Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

"If McCarthy, Cohn and Schine are protecting us from Communists, who will protect us from McCarthy, Cohn and Schine?" a reader wrote the New York Post.

"Sen. Joe McCarthy... carries the cross, not that he has to carry it, but because his country comes first with him, regardless of party lines or beliefs," said a letter in the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press.

No State Law Violated

LITTLE ROCK (AP) Recent action in Arkansas by local school boards to end segregation in the public schools doesn't violate any state laws.

Claude Carpenter of the attorney general's office cited Article 14, Section 1 of the State Constitution, which provides that all persons between the ages of 8 and 21 are entitled to receive instruction.

Decisions by the Arkansas Supreme Court in the past, however, have indicated that "equal" and separate facilities would be agreeable with the law.

"However, Carpenter said today, 'all of that is gone by the wayside now. The U. S. Supreme Court's ruling on segregation will overrule the state Supreme Court's past decisions.'"

Sheridan Friday became the first public school to invite Negro pupils to attend the white schools. The next day, however, the Sheridan School Board bowed to a protest from school patrons and re-reinforced the order.

Fayetteville later announced that it had taken similar action. Fayetteville has not rescinded in its move to integrate nine Negro pupils with 500 white pupils.

Governor Cherry declined to comment on the actions of the Sheridan and Fayetteville school boards.
